

PETIT LOUIS BISTRO

LES VINS

bonjour!

My list of Louis' cellar is comprised of a wide range of wines from all of the wine-producing regions of France that make sense to me with Louis' classic kitchen. From simple table wines to age-worthy & highly-complex Grand Crus each choice is made with specific situations in mind when entertaining guests as well as varying dishes, seasons & moods. Our staff is constantly trained in the use of our cellar & is very happy to assist you marrying menus & wines.

Bon Appetit

CHAMPAGNE & MOUSSEUX

Champagne

Champagne is not just the perfect apéritif or the wine of celebration – it happens to be extremely food-flexible with its freshness, lightness, great aromatic presence & vibrant acidity.

Louis Roederer "Brut Premier" NV (Bin 935) is a beautifully rich & detailed Pinot-Noir driven cuvee.

Ideal for rich fish dishes or even veal sweetbreads.

VALLÉE DE LA LOIRE

Loire Valley

Many of the most interesting & longest-lived whites in the world are from the lesser-known parts of the Loire Valley. Saumur "Les Pouches"

Lieu-dit 2011 (Bin 109) offers white peach, bright minerals, & crisp acidity. Perfect as an apéritif or with a light first course. The Sancerre by Thiroit "Le Haut Venore" 2011 (Bin 108) is stunning with classically light herbaceous notes & ripe citrus fruit, it is perfect for white fish, chevre & stronger vegetable dishes.

ALSACE ET JURA

Alsace

Alsace runs the flavor gamut – from very dry Pinot Auxerrois, to somewhat fruity Reisling, to relatively sweet Pinot Gris & Gewurztraminer. The careful balance in all of these wines makes them successful with a variety of dishes. Domaine Deiss' wines are especially intense. Marcel Hugg cultivates some of the best terroirs in Bergheim. This area has been producing wines in the same style for the last seven hundred years. We are in the fortunate position of being one of the only restaurants in the United States to bring these wines to your table. They have an elegant balance of structure & acidity that will make these wines ideal for anyone who simply wants to enjoy a great bottle, or pair it with their perfect meal.

BOURGOGNE CÔTE de BEAUNE

Côte de Beaune Red

Reds from the Côtes de Beaune share characteristically red fruits on the nose & palate, yet have very different mineral, textural & structural qualities.

Wines from Beaune are firm with dark minerality, while Pommards & Volnays offer more generous textures.

Cortons are the most dense, powerful & structured.

BOURGOGNE CÔTE de NUITS

Côte de Nuits Red

Recent vintage notes may assist—2007 has given ripe, soft, & friendly wines that are meant to be consumed before the more seriously structured wines of the prior two vintages. 2006 has given wines of classical aromas & flavors backed by firm acidity from Marsannay in the north of the Côte to Nuits Saint Georges in the south and all districts between. Excellent for intense food & lessons in terroir. 2005 provided massive Pinot Noirs of great ripeness & age-ability that should be used carefully as young wines. Certainly Burgundy for beef!

CHABLIS et BOURGOGNE SUD

Chablis

Look to the cool climate of Chablis for the perfect apéritif white – steely, mineral-driven & bone-dry. Chablis, Christian Moreau 2010 (Bin 949) is a perfect example of this & is the ultimate escargot match!

Chablis Grand Cru “Valmur” Domaine William Fèvre 2006 (Bin 136) is of excellent breadth & character.

It has a broad build with persistent flavors of citrus peel & powdered stone. Plump, mineral driven & long on the finish.

BEAUJOLAIS et SAVOIE

Beaujolais

Gamay Beaujolais is a youthful, exuberant grape that produces grape-y, gulpable reds.

You cannot find a better match for some of Petit Louis' classic dishes.

Try the Whole Roasted Chicken, Pâté or Duck Leg Confit with these fruity, generous wines.

2009 was an extremely important and historic vintage that produced wines of beautiful texture and ripeness. The quality of the wines in 2009 had not been seen for 30 plus years thus giving a more defined historical importance. 2010 is top quality right behind 2009.

HISTOIRE

“it was one of the two religious eating experiences of my life”

Petit Louis Bistro offers a Parisian bistro style environment in the Northern section of Baltimore City. Drawing on their personal enjoyment of similar venues throughout France, Tony & Cindy created a food and atmosphere combination which they knew Baltimore was lacking. The concept of a bistro is certainly not a new idea, but its classic definition is fairly unrealized in our culture. For hundreds of years, bistros in France have been the daily gathering spots for locals to eat, drink, socialize, celebrate, catch up on what's new in the village, or just enjoy at any time of the day. A similar role can be seen in the traditional pubs of Great Britain & trattorias in Italy.

As a local venue, a bistro's function is not unlike that of an adjunct courthouse, boardroom, or church, oftentimes serving the community decisions more effectively for the presence of food, drink & familiar lively surroundings.

Perhaps what will most distinguish a bistro here from typical “restaurants” is its ability to be many types of restaurants in one location. Most Baltimore natives have an automatic answer for where they'd go to enjoy a sandwich and a beer; a different answer for a casual dinner; and yet another for a seven course “occasion” dinner. This is not surprising considering the specialization of restaurants to which our culture has become accustomed. A bistro operating in true style would be an easy choice for all the above dining styles, as well as everything in between; it specializes in food & atmosphere without rules, limitations or requirements.

To put it simply, during Tony & Cindy's trip to the Granddaddy of all bistros, Chez L'Ami Louis in Paris (note the name), their experience there was ALL ABOUT THE FOOD. To be sure, the service there is extremely charismatic & knowledgeable, & the wine list is quite good, but you quickly realize that inside those doors, Food is King. Anything getting between the food & its consumption is quickly remedied without hesitation or apology. Every customer is expected to Eat A Lot, because it does not get any better or more basic than what they do there. When Tony & Cindy were introduced to the restaurant, they found the menu was handwritten on blank white paper – obviously without too much concern for neatness – & run through a copier; the table was tiny, & they still don't know how it sufficed; the chairs were fairly uncomfortable; the walls were not dirty but had not been tended to for at least thirty years; coats were kindly taken & then carelessly tossed onto a shelf above heads; the only clock was clogged with gout & hadn't worked for generations; the rest room was physically challenging to reach & to use; the room was stifling hot & other guests were smoking constantly. This would surely register as shocking to many American diners, but the effect yielded an outrageous level of character.

The overriding mentality there was obvious:

“Who cares what's on the walls, or how tiny the table is, when the food is this good?”

Whereas L'Ami Louis has evolved into Michelin 3-Star food in dilapidated structure, Tony & Cindy have painstakingly created a physical environment to achieve just such an attitude, for you, as our customer.

CÔTES du RHÔNE SEPTENTRIONALES

Northern Rhône

Whites from the Northern Rhône Valley are rich in texture with unusual, exotic flavors.

Saint-Joseph, E. Guigal "Lieu Dit" 2008
(Bin 1213) This blend of Marsanne & Roussanne is luscious & low in acidity.

Reds from the Northern Rhône come in a wide range of styles, from light-hearted St. Joseph to rich, soulful Côte-Rotie, to power-hitting Hermitage. The Côte Rôtie from Patrick et Christophe Bonnefond is expressive & reflects the nuances of this vintage beautifully.

Bordeaux Suggestions

Bordeaux Blanc, Château Fort de Roquetaillade 2010 (Bin 169) is a luscious blend of ripe, tropical-fruited Semillon & zesty Sauvignon Blanc. A touch of toasted oak makes this an easy, crowd-pleasing choice.

Château Le Bon Pasteur (Pomerol) 2005 (Bin 693) is satisfying in its core of classic Bordeaux flavors & aromas with tobacco, black currants & graphite minerals. Its location in the far south of Bordeaux lends it the ability to drink beautifully in its youth.

Cahors & Madiran are two of the most important wines of the middle ages. In fact, Clos de Gamot is the oldest documented wine producing estate in France.

The Jouffreau family has been producing wine since 1100 or the age of Charlemagne.
